

Indiana Main Street encourages economic development, redevelopment, and improvement of the downtown areas of Indiana cities and towns. As the traditional heart and hub of government, commerce, justice, and social interaction, the downtown business district plays a crucial role in the overall image of a community. The program is founded on community development that emphasizes the preservation and development of traditional downtown resources.

The Indiana Main Street Four Point Approach

1. Organization: Building consensus and cooperation among the many groups and individuals involved in the revitalization process. To ensure a self-reliant, broad-based, long-lasting downtown revitalization program, the entire community must rally around the idea.
2. Design: Enhancing the physical appearance of the commercial district by rehabilitating historic buildings, encouraging supportive new construction, developing sensitive design management systems and long-term planning to create a friendly, attractive place that will draw in visitors and businesses.
3. Promotion: Marketing the commercial district's assets to customers, potential investors, businesses, local citizens, and visitors. To keep investors and businesses coming downtown, Main Street must reshape the community perspective of downtown as the hub of activity.
4. Economic Restructuring: Strengthening the district's existing economic base while finding ways to capitalize on new opportunities and overcome challenges from outlying development. Main Street's ultimate goal is to create downtowns that are economically viable.

Indiana Main Street is administered through the Indiana Office of Community & Rural Affairs.

The Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs was created in 2005, making rural areas a major focus for the first time in Indiana's history. Under the leadership of Lt. Governor Becky Skillman, OCRA strives to assist rural communities in achieving their own visions for economic development.

“Vibrant downtowns reflect the heritage and civic pride of our cities and towns, and they are critical to attracting industry, investment, and visitors to an area. By capitalizing on the existing assets in downtown areas, Indiana Main Street programs make contributions to the overall success of their communities that will be felt for generations to come.”

–Lt. Governor Becky Skillman
